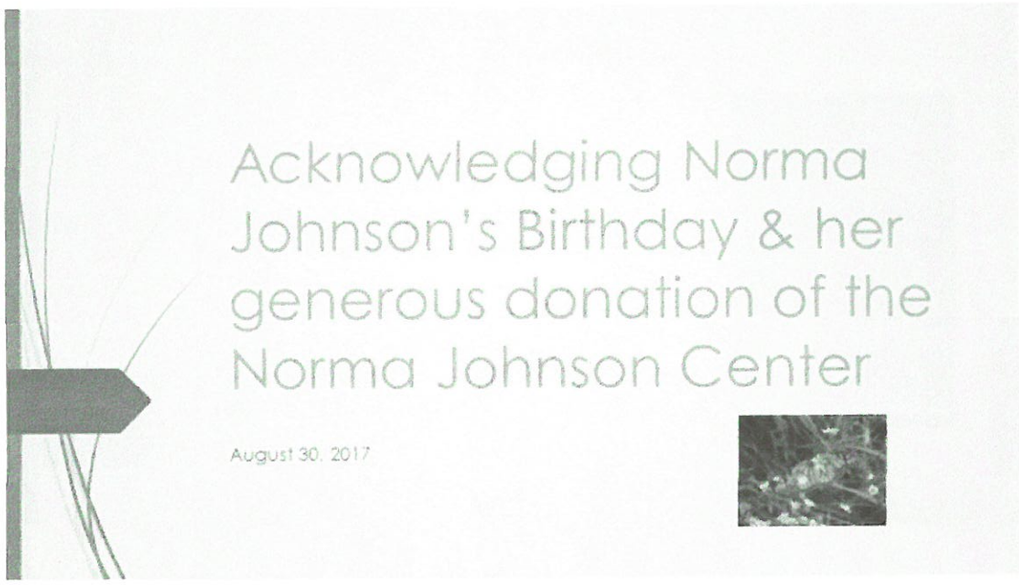
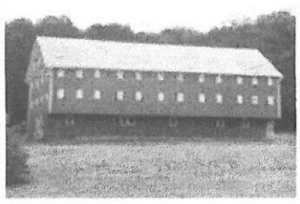
NORMA JEANETTE JOHNSON BIRTHDAY ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Commissioner Abbuhl began by reading a power point presentation prepared by Jane Clay, Administrative Assistant and Park Coordinator, remembering Mrs. Norma Johnson.

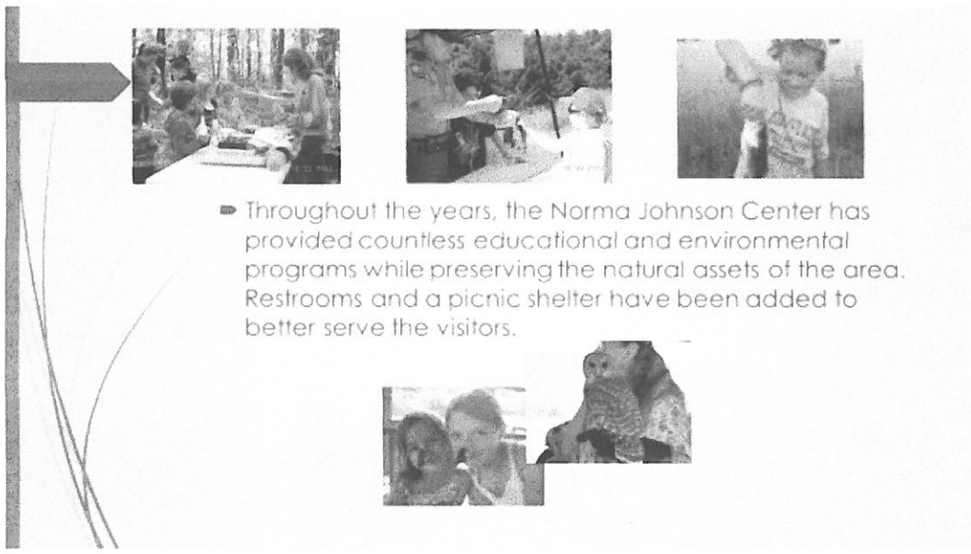


- Norma Jeanette Johnson was a trailblazer for women, a constant educator and innovator embodied by a relationship to the hills of Brandywine Valley. Entering the workforce in Cleveland just after WWII she worked in a variety of fields returning home in the 1950's to help her father farm and following a family tradition taught in high schools throughout Tuscarawas County.

- In 1968, she became the 5th generation of Johnsons to take stewardship of farmland in Brandywine Valley developing a sheep herd with artisan support throughout the balance of her life. She also developed forests on former farmlands for future generations.



- In 1989, the Tuscarawas Soil and Water Conservation District received a portion of her farm to develop the Norma Johnson Nature Preserve and upon her demise, the balance of her lands was given to Tuscarawas County Commissioners for the Norma Johnson Nature Preserve now part of the Tuscarawas County Park Department.



Susan Covey, Norma Johnson's daughter, attended the meeting and presented several photos of the Johnson family. Over one hundred years ago, the Johnson family moved to Tuscarawas County for the local black walnut trees. Norma Johnson, born years later in 1926, lived a life molded by strong women around her, whether it was her mother, grandmother, great grandmother, or her fandom of Amelia Earhart. It was this conviction in the strength and equality of women, which would determine the path of Mrs. Johnson's life, and the many decisions she made along the way. Though she lived in Cleveland for a time, Norma would eventually return home to Tuscarawas County, where she would one day offer her land to Tuscarawas County for what is now the Norma Johnson Center. According to Susan Covey, her mother enjoyed weaving and playing the piano, loved cartoons and writing, was passionate for education, and had an incredible work ethic. She was an entrepreneur, constantly reinventing herself, and attended college at Heidelberg and the Cleveland Art School. As Mrs. Covey stated, her mother could be summarized by a single quote from an image of one sheep saying to rest of the flock, "wait, wait, we don't have to be just sheep." Her daughter, Susan Covey, expressed to the Commissioners that Norma Johnson would be pleased to see the work being done at the NJC, but would also push the Commissioners and Tuscarawas County to keep moving forward. Her daughter did the same, not only expressing gratitude to the Commissioners for the work done in TUSCParks, but also iterating to the Commissioners that these parks are an attraction to the community. Mrs. Covey told the Commissioners she holds a firm conviction that people, particularly younger people, will look to leave the cities at times for "fresh air" and venture to places such as the NJC for time to reflect, and simply be present. Many individuals who were in attendance also took some time to express their thoughts on Norma Johnson.

- Commissioner Abbuhl stated that the Commissioners and Tuscarawas County are always trying to meet the mission of Norma Johnson, and listed some of the many projects being performed or completed at the NJC, including: the handicap accessible dock, electric projects, and restrooms.
- Commissioner Metzger appreciates the legacy Norma Johnson has left behind for Tuscarawas County, and the invaluable jewel the center is to the area. According to Mr. Metzger, the NJC is truly the centerpiece of TUSCParks.

- Commissioner Sciarretti loved the grit of Norma Johnson, and how she achieved so much against all odds. Commissioner Sciarretti stated he holds the conviction that the many successful individuals from Tuscarawas County have a sense of grit to his or her being, and that Norma Johnson, and this grittiness is firmly intertwined in the legacy of Tuscarawas County.
- Tracey Haney, Director of Tuscarawas County Soil and Water Conservation District, stated how grateful she and her department are for the land, and thanked the many volunteers who put forth a tremendous effort.
- Shirley Everhart, member of the Norma Johnson Center Foundation Board, was proud to have known Norma, and remembered the first time she came to a board meeting stating that she wanted to offer the land to Tuscarawas County.
- Mary Jane John, member of the Norma Johnson Center Foundation Board, encouraged everyone to come visit what she believes is still the best kept secret in Tuscarawas County. Mrs. John did say that awareness is spreading however, and that the center is always looking for volunteers.
- Jane Clay, Executive Assistant and Park Coordinator, recalled how impressed she was with Norma Johnson when she met her. Remembering that she was a progressive and forward thinker, an innovator, and someone all of Tuscarawas County should admire. Mrs. Clay also stated that there is a plan to create a display of photos of the Norma and her family at the NJC, to which Commissioner Abbuhl said would be a fantastic idea.

Susan Covey ended the conversation quite fittingly, saying that Tuscarawas County is more than just a county. The history, people, and places make Tuscarawas County an experience, and the Norma Johnson Center, and her mother, is a powerful symbol of not only that experience, but all of Tuscarawas County.

NO OTHER BUSINESS COMING BEFORE THE BOARD.
